AVALANCHE OF PANCAKES

Sources in the industry are now predicting that the bovine manufacturing industry is about to hit a record-setting boom. In actuality, the only remaining hurdles are the global shortage on hooves and the rising prices of leather.

Fledgling entrepreneurs, however, are looking for a return to the grassroots ideals of the bovine assembly lines. Some bright young minds, such as Martin Van Der Schweinn, are leading the pack with revolutionary new systems, such as the Holstein Engineered Assembly Apparatus, not seen since the early days of the Industrial Revolution.

Only time will tell what the future holds for the vast market of manufactured cattle producers, but if experts' predictions are any indication, the outlook is moo-tastic.
